Resolved by the General Assembly of the Com-

That in this great crisis of the nation it is fit that Kentucky should meet the momentous issues of the times in the same spirit of patriotic mod eration and conservatism, and with the same sentiments of unwavering loyalty, which have characterized her action in the past, and which upon so many occasions she has solemnly announced to sion the hour arrived for the the world. She has ever cherished the Federal the world. She has ever cherished the Federal Union as associated with her choicest memories unin as associated with her cuoicest memories and her brightest hopes, and she clings to it now, in the time of trial, with un altering devotion. She can never consent to the severance and disintegration of this great community or States, which nature has bound together as one, and upon which, in their great physical features, the hand of heaven has stanned the impress of indiable. of heaven has stamped the impress of indissolu of heaven has stamped the impress of indistillable unity; nor can she look with indifference upon any infraction of the Constitution, which is the bond of our political union, and by whose wise provisions the illustrious founders of the Republic have happily blended the individuality of the separate States under their local magistratics with the vigor and authority of a comtracies, with the vigor and authority of a common government, which pervades the mall. While, therefore, we will resist with the whole energies of the Commonwealth, every effort to destroy the Government, we cannot endorse all the acts of the present Administration in the posecution of the war, for the suppression of the rebellion. More espacially do we dissent from the recent proclamations of the President, declaring martial law throughout the United States, and proclaiming the emancipatian of the slaves in the rebellious States, and earnestly protest against them, both as in violation of the Constitution and in conflict with the spirit and genius of the Govern ment. But while thus constrained, in this solemo manner, to condemn the action of the Executive, we cannot overlook for a moment the broad distinction which exists, in the very nature of our institutions, between the Government itself and even the highest functionary charged with its administration. Public magistrates are elected for limited terms, which mark the duration of their authority; but the Government itself was formed to survive the transitory existence of adninistrations and of parties, and to endure forthe Union, and through the forms of the Govern-ment; and, looking to its peaceful agencies, under the guidance of an enlightened public sentiment, as the surest corrective of wrongs and abuses, we will struggle for the restoration of the Union with the rights and dignities of the several States unimpaired, as the best security and safeguard of the liberties of American freemen. Mr. T. F. MARSHALL, from the minor ity of the committee, made the following

Union Convention!

At a meeting of the Union members of the Legislature, in the House of Represen tatives, on Monday evening, Feb. 16th, 1863, on motion, Hon. Joseph R. Underwood was called to the Chair, and John B. Bruner, appointed Secretary.

After a free and full consultation it is re commended to the Union Democracy of Kentucky that they assemble in convention, through their delegates, in the city of Louisville, on the 18th day of March next, and nominate suitable persons as candidates to fill the various State offices, to be chosen at the next August election. It is further recommended that the people meet, at some convenient time and place, in their respec tive counties, and appoint delegates to rep resent them in the convention.

J. R. UNDERWOOD, Chairman. JOHN B. BRUNER, Secretary.

The Suppression of the Rebel Convention.

The suppression, by Col. Gilbert, commanding the United States forces at this point, of the rebel Convention which met here on the 18th inst., is being made the subject of much discussion through some of the public prints. The secessionists unani mously condemn his course. And upon entirely different grounds than those assigned by secessionists, his course is censured by some of the Union party.

For our own part, we think that, under all the circumstances of the case, Colonel Gilbert did exactly right. We rejoice that he had the courage and the nerve to suppress the band of traitors who proposed to lav, in this city, the basis of an organization whose ultimate purpose was to drag Kentucky out of the Union. And we rejoice that Colonel G.'s conduct was characterized by that prudence and discretion which the occasion demanded. He deserves, in our judgment, the thanks of every loyal citizen of Kentucky. And we feel an abiding con viction that an immense majority of the people of Kentucky cordially approve what he did, if not what he said.

We say "Amen" to what Col. Gilbert did, because we know, as every one else does that in the breast of perhaps no single member of the Convention was there a single emotion of loyalty. No one of them have any sympathy with the Government of the United States in the tremendous Southern rebellion. All of their sympathies are with the rebels, and they rejoice in their hearts at every success of the Confederates. If they had the power they would starve our gallant army into a surrender of all for which we are now fighting. They would recognize the independence of the Kentucky, and then drench her fair fields in blood, in order to attach her to the fortunes of Jeff. Davis. It was a disunion organization, begotten and conceived by original secession sympathizers, and neither it nor any of its members deserved the slightest consideration from the United States authorities.
